

Comfort Zone; Wisconsin stall divider

When a cow lies down or goes up in the pasture, she needs at least 3 meters of space: her so called “Comfort Zone”. Each obstacle within this reach she will experience as being annoying and that will have a negative influence on her behaviour. With the Comfort Zone Cowhouse developed a stall divider concept where, just like in nature, the cows enjoy full freedom of movement. Since there aren’t any obstacles, the cow does not have any fear to lie down or to get up.

Thanks to the unique and patented adjustable floor mounting there is a fully free headspace of 180°. There aren’t any poles or horizontal front tubes. The continuous under tube gives the cow steering when she is lying down. The stall dividers are made of high quality steel and are hot-dip galvanized. The Wisconsin stall divider is available in lengths to 300 cm single rows and to 580 cm double rows.
